

EDENWALD SENIOR LIVING URC RECONGIZED IN EFA DESIGN SHOWCASE 2026

Inspire, the Edenwald/Goucher College University Retirement Community (URC), representing Maryland’s first formal partnership between a life plan community and an academic institution, has been featured in the Environments for Aging 2026 Design Showcase Magazine. Inspire is “redefining what senior living can be: a dynamic, intergenerational setting where purpose, intellectual vitality, and social engagement thrive side by side,” EFA states. Speaking on the impact the community will have, they go on to state that the URC model “enriches both institutions: a place where older adults and students learn with and from one another, transforming the perception of retirement living and campus life alike.” The Inspire project is projected to be completed in 2029.

ARCH WELCOMES NEW TEAM MEMBER

Please join us in welcoming Ben Butler to the ARCH team! Ben has over 25 years of leadership experience in the senior living and hospitality industries. He has worked on a variety of large-scale culinary & environmental service transformations, and community innovation projects within the living sector. A key project being Enso Village, a $300 million Zen-inspired life-plan community located in northern California, in which Ben was instrumental to the development of the community. Other professional experience includes strategic procurement management, multi-site operational leadership, and the development of B2B client solutions.

LEADINGAGE MARYLAND 2026

Join Frank Muraca and Tim Winnecke at LeadingAge Maryland 2026, where they will present their insights on development planning. They will cover topics such as long range planning, market analysis, and building assessment, while also sharing relevant case studies to illustrate real world examples.